

5

10

ABSTRACT

Methods and apparatus are provided for converting binary image data at a first resolution to binary image data at a second resolution, the methods including detecting the edges of the binary image data, sampling a corresponding point on or substantially near each of the edges, fitting a curve between the sampled points, and re-sampling the curve at the second resolution.